AALS to Make Study of Part-Time Legal Education

By Charles D. Kelso
(From the Student Lawyer Journal)

The extent to which part-time legal education is affecting the academic performance and career potential of law students is today, and has been for many years, a subject of controversy and concern. Now, with the aid of a grant from the Ford Foundation, the Association of American Law Schools is undertaking a study of part-time legal education in the United States.

These issues stand unresolved:
1. What is the nature and extent of part-time legal education in the United States today?
2. What is its effect on law school performance and on law career potential?
3. What is the efficiency and effectiveness of part-time legal education for achieving the traditional goal of training students for the practice of law?

Since men with considerable experience in part-time legal education have reached differing positions about its effectiveness, it is probably not realistic to assume that any study can entirely resolve the controversy. However, by gathering pertinent facts, the AALS study is designed to sharpen the issues and, perhaps, lay to rest differences in study habits between part-time and full-time students. There remain, however, certain problems of methodology which will be mailed in 1965 to sample of the June graduating class.

The facts will be gathered by an examination of existing writings, by questionnaires directed to law faculties, law students and law school administration.

The most important fact gathering device is the questionnaire which will be mailed in 1965 to all schools for admission to the AALS study. Under “job placement,” respondents are asked to fill in blanks personal to their own experience in part-time law school.

The questionnaire is designed to obtain the cooperation of as many schools as possible.

Ask Seniors Help In Job Placement

Every student who enters C-M looks to graduation as a far off time. For those of you who will leave in June it has been suggested to the Gavel that some sort of mailing device be used so that the community at large and the law school specifically are aware of the inherent talent that abound at C-M. Of course, this is not to suggest that those students who have not yet decided on their career pattern should not be given the opportunity to advertise their talents.

Innovator Reveals Reasons for Change Are Varied

By Kenneth Stern

At a recent meeting of the Student Bar Association, Prof. Robert Schoenfeld outlined the reasons behind the new schedule arrangement which will bring into effect with the beginning of the coming school year, and described the effects which the system will have.

Prof. Schoenfeld pointed out that the present system is completely outdated because of the needs of the student body. It is, he said, becoming more and more difficult to schedule classes, so that students are forced to the nights on which students are scheduled to attend and as to the ability of professors to arrange their own teaching schedules. Situations exist whereby, as in Agen,

C-M Will Inaugurate Trimester System Next Fall

Students Face 3 Exam Weeks; Year Not Lengthened

By John Kless

Whether or not hems go higher next fall in Paris, Cleveland-Marshall will initiate its own “New Look.” Instead of the present method of scheduling classes, next fall’s sessions will be arranged under a different plan. For those who like catch phrases or slogans, the plan has been called “the modified trimester.” Dean Professor Schoenfeld has deemed it the “truncated trimester” plan.

The school year will be divided into three trimesters, a fall semester of 15 weeks, a winter semester of the same length, and the truncated trimester of three semesters, a fall semester of 11 weeks, through the second week of June. Each subject however, will be taught during the 15 week semester, precluding the present staggered departures. The fall year’ will be divided into one 15 week semester and two 10 week semesters. During their school year ending the last of April or the first part of May.

No “Flip-Flops”

The three hour courses will be taught during the 15 week semester. There will be no “7th Period” one or one half hour class sessions; each three hour period will be devoted to the subject. Five hour courses such as Constitutional Law will be taught through the Winter and Spring semesters.

Alumni News Joins Gavel

The Gavel proudly announces the addition of the alumni news to its pages. Not only will the student body be able to find out about the activities of the Alumni Association but the alumni will be kept abreast of the latest events at C-M.

ABA to Inaugurate Student Loans; C-M Not Included in First Quota

Allocations of law student loan quotas, totaling approximately $2,000,000, were established by the managing committee of the American Bar Association two day meeting in Chicago.

The committee agreed to accept loan applications from the 89 schools which requested participation in response to the first announcement of the loan fund. Allocation of the quotas was expected from many of the remaining 47 law schools approved for participation.

A modest reserve in additional lending acapacity was set aside to accommodate loan applications from these schools.

Enthusiastic responses from law schools throughout the country indicated that the resources is even greater than had been anticipated. Although the amount of money that can be lent is limited, the full amount of quotas requested by some schools, it was able to provide for the number of students which sought participation.

The committee agreed to accept additional applications for the ABA Fund for Public Education, at the discretion of the committee. Donations from other private or professional groups, or individual lawyers, were accepted in such small amounts which sought participation.

The committee decided to accept only those schools approved by the ABA Fund for Public Education, at the discretion of the committee. Donations from other private or professional groups, or individual lawyers, were accepted in such small amounts which sought participation.

Two Are Named Trustees of C-M

Two Clevelanders have been named to the board of trustees of Cleveland-Marshall School of Baldwin-Wallace College. They are Thomas L. Fawick, chairman of the board of the Fawick Corp., and Edward T. Cunneen, vice president of Fawick, Clark & Co., investment firm. Both men were elected to three-year terms.

Cunneen is a member of the Shaker Heights Civil Service Commission, an honorary doctor of laws degree by the Cleveland-Marshall Law School. The present board of trustees is composed of five men.

Editorial Opinions

At this time of the year when everyone is thinking of Christmas and all the associated thoughts of parties, last minute shopping and the gifts they will be giving and also receiving, they are all too apt to forget the real spirit of the season and the truly beautiful message that it carries for all faiths.

As we future lawyers should be even more watchful and attentive to the familiar old adage of “peace on earth, goodwill to men.” In this troubled world that we have all lived in it seems that we live in a constant state of tension, always from crisis to crisis. No one knows better than we do that perhaps the legal profession may be the last salvation of our world and yet it is just a few of us that leave here will be legislators and make the laws, but the rest of us will use knowledge to implement those laws.

It is how we use this knowledge to implement the written law that will decide the fate of us all. It has been said many times that the courts, not the lawmakers, truly write the law. If this is true, then those of us who practice before these benches are the ones who carry a far greater load on our shoulders than we sometime realize. As we all start this new year let the old saying keep wandering through your mind’s; “Peace on Earth, Goodwill to men.”

A New Year’s Thought

Wandering and wondering: Critical writers and other interested parties trying to twist the national election results into whatever shape that will justify the particular “experts’” biases or leanings... The papers state that the American and British public supported down ten percent this year, yet continually report big bags of game by hunters. We believe the former reports, based on two days and 500 miles of tramping behind a pack of brittanies... every farmer in the state has seen, but none objected.

Your President Speaks

By Fred DeRoche

No doubt some sort of journalistic history is being made here today, since your columnist is writing his final few lines concurrent... Well, I want to try to spell his name. Be that as it may, with elections... Student Body President fast approaching, it is perhaps an appropriate time to look over the local scene and either point with pride or view with alarm, as the spirit moves us.

First, a word of thanks is certainly due, both from me and from you, to this year’s class representatives on the Student Council. As a group, they have taken a much more serious interest and a more mature approach to the problems... Our last year is to be congratulated. For even than we sometimes realize. As we all start this new year let the old adage of “peace on earth” be remembered.

Hank Berlon and Bob Starkus put together a remarkably comprehensive and accurate listing was produced, all of which was a pleasant surprise, even to Bill.

Balazek’s efforts on the Student Directory bore fruit well before the Christmas season, especially since winning... the fame of the “Golden Dome” is apparently always lurking under the surface, needing only one good season to burst in all its splendor upon the collegiate football scene. Not only is a good q.b., John Huaire, will have a weighty decision facing him, based on whether or not to stick around for another season, especially since winning the Heisman Trophy, symbolic of the best in the country. Is this really an elective choice?... Downtown businessmen feel that we late shoppers... These three will feel the change most acutely, but doubt this assertion there is ample evidence in the record.

As this is written we are looking forward to the first in a series of lectures to the law school by distinguished practitioners, jurists and professors. Ken Stern furnished much of the drive which has finally transformed this long-touted with idea into an active going program. Every lecture has been, first talk, by Mr. Craig Spangenberg, will be highly successful, and with the availability of a manuscript... The idea is to have a call that big gun at anything that moves!... The recent lecture by Craig Spangenberg was interesting from the standpoint of what it shows this noted attorney handled his audience. He manipulated all as though he was before a jury. Yet it was a skillful job by a polished speaker with a wealth of knowledge and a magnificent voice. Last summer, the Cleveland Press announced that Regis McCauley would be the new q.b., replacing Bob August, who took over Frank Gibson’s column. Yet August did not list as sports for another season. Where, oh where, is Regis?... The Fall Ball was attended by several of the faculty, some of the students could name places with faces. Winter, in all its fine white attire, will soon make wet feet and chilled

One short year ago we were presented with the idea of taking over The Gavel from the previous staff. Many of the faculty we indeed did take it over. The results, we hope, are self-evident. Never in even our wildest hopes did we ever expect to receive the welcome that we did from the students and the administration. We tried a lot of new ideas, opened our mouths quite wide, even stuck our feet in them once in a while, but we’ve weathered the storm and even won national recognition for our work. It had been established that The Gavel and The Alumni News are being combined so that not only can our alumni grasp the tremendous change and progress that we are making, but also that we will be able to remain in closer contact with our school. At present it gives both groups a chance to watch the other. We must extend a great deal of credit and thanks to Peter Roper, Alumni Director, for his continued help in this merger.

Those of you alumnus who haven’t kept up with us in the last year are to be congratulated. For even those of us who were here wondered how it has all been done. We’ve come up with the only possible answer though, this year must just have contained more than 365 days.

Trustees Name Judge Connell
To Lead First Alumni Fund Drive

James C. Connell, Chief Judge of the United States District Court for the Northern District of Ohio has been named chairman of the Cleveland-Marshall Law School's first fund drive by the Alumni Association's Board of Trustees.

Judge Connell, who attended the law school from 1915 to 1918, was Winemiller, to a professor and personal friend of Judge Connell, and was re-elected three times without opposition. In August of 1954, at the suggestion of Governor Shriver, Judge Connell was appointed by President Eisenhower to the federal bench, and in December of 1960 he was appointed Chief Judge, the position he now holds.

His service in community affairs is impressive. He served two years as President of the Holy Name Society, and for another two years was the first Holy Name Diocesan President. In 1946, he was elected "Man of the Year" by the Knights of Columbus, and four years later received the Ver- cell Medal from the National Holy Name Society. He is presently on the national board of the society.

Judge Connell has been a member of the Rosemary Home for Crippled Children for 20 years, and of the Advisory Board of Charity Hospital since 1949, heading both groups for a number of years.

The jurist has served as President of the Cuyahoga County Bar Association, President of the Cleveland Safety Council, and President of the Cleveland Mental Health Association.

Library Card Will Admit Associates to Facilities

Professor Rudolf Heimanson, the law school's librarian, has announced a clarification of the role of the membership card in the Alumni Association if the alumni wishes to use the school's excellent library facilities.

According to the new policy, an associate or employee of a member of the Alumni Association will be permitted to use the library upon the presentation of the member's library card.

Alumni Support Needed

Dear Alumnus:

The members of the Alumni Association of Cleveland-Marshall Law School are often called upon to assist worthy activities of all kinds.

For the first time in the history of the Law School which helped us acquire our professional careers, we are now asked to lend an ear to a professional career which will not only enhance its stature in the community, but which will also enable it to utilize its facilities for the increased and constant benefit of its alumni.

We are asked to assist in raising funds to expand facilities on the first floor of the school building. Plans are drawn to provide space for the use by our Alumni Association's members of a conference room, moot court, administrative office, etc., all within a very short distance of the courthouse.

This should be a great convenience for all, but especially for those whose offices are at a distance from the courthouse.

We ask your assistance in this very practical and useful endeavor in behalf of all. Will you not, please, give it your fervent and determined backing?

Sincerely,

JAMES C. CONNELL, Chairman

Reports on Use of Degrees

With reference to the use of degrees on letterheads and stationery of lawyers, the following summary of opinions of the Ethics Committee of the American Bar Association are given. They are from the Appendix to the 1957 edition of the ABA Ethics Opinions.

"115. A lawyer's letterhead should not state that he is a C.P.A...

116. or M.D. or Doctor of Jurisprudence..."

More specific information on the use of the C.P.A. and the M.D. in combination with Attorney at Law or LL.B. may be found in the Ohio Bar Code of 1962, in the "Canons of Professional Ethics and Model Rules of Professional Conduct."

Scenes from the Alumni Luncheon...

An overflow crowd of approximately 450 alumni and friends of Cleveland-Marshall Law School attended the annual luncheon last summer at which Judge Lee E. Skee, and Dean Wilson G. Stapleton were honored. Also honored were some 25 alumni who had achieved prominence in the field of commerce and industry. Here are a few scenes.

Juvenile Court Judge Anthony J. Gagliardo, also an Alumni Trustee, receives the annual award to Judge Skee.

Dean Wilson G. Stapleton is recognized as an "outstanding alumnae" as he receives his award from Judge Gagliardo.

Part of the overflow crowd attending the annual luncheon. Despite all the honors bestowed, everyone was out by 1:30—a record for such affairs.

The classes of '46, '41, and '42 were grouped together at one of the many class reunion tables at the luncheon.

Wilson G. Stapleton was honored. Also honored were some 25 alumni who had achieved prominence in the field of commerce and industry. Here are a few scenes.

In Memoriam

ORVILLE J. WEAVER

Known to his many friends as "Buck" Weaver passed into God's greater world November 12, 1964. To the members of his bereaved family, his wife Madeline, his daughter Mrs. Pamela Clay, the Cleveland-Marshall Law School extends its profound condolences.

Scenes from the Alumni Open House...

Each year, the Alumni Open House draws a bigger crowd. This year, the returning alumni saw vast improvements at the school, including remodeled classrooms. This coming year, they won't get a chance to see the changes planned for the first floor, since the work is in progress, and the next Open House will be held, this one time only, in the Auditorium of the Women's Federal Savings & Loan Association, on Superior Avenue.

Everyone Had a Fling at the First “Fall Ball”

Cleveland-Marshall Law School students received awards totaling more than $1400, plus legal texts and other prizes at the school's Student Bar Association Fall Ball, at the Statler-Hilton Hotel.

Wilson G. Stapleton, Dean, handed out the academic awards on behalf of the faculty at the affair, which featured a late evening buffet, and dancing to Hal Lynn's Orchestra.

Howard Fairweather, 3rd-year student, received four of the evening's 19 awards. His prizes included $100 from the Ohio State Bar Association Foundation for the highest academic record in the first one-third of all courses; the David C. Meck, Sr. Memorial Scholarship of $100 for the highest cumulative average at the end of the second year of studies; the Suggs Garber Scholarship Award of $100 for the second highest grade in Business Organizations; and the Delta Theta Phi Fraternity Award, an inscribed plaque, for writing the law review article

B-W Merger Continues to Bring Many Advantages to Both Campuses

By Russ Gioscioso

In order to appreciate the affiliation between Cleveland-Marshall and Baldwin-Wallace one must look to the historic development of both institutions. Each began at a much lower academic base than they now enjoy. Together they are moving toward parity with the universities which have the same interest in the Cleveland community. Recently there has been a marked trend among professional schools to affiliate with academic institutions, and Cleveland-Marshall has now accomplished this inevitable task. The new affiliation adds a new and unique dimension to the land yacht club.

After assurance that the schools would maintain their autonomy as separate corporations and remain financially solvent, who is also vice-president of Baldwin-Wallace, was one of three annual dinner meetings at which they will review the progress and project future plans for the schools.

Among the first things to be discussed will be law and its relation to a liberal education. Rumor has it that their Berea campus may be introduced to the law school. Among the first steps to be taken is a reciprocal program such as a seminar on "sociology and the law," and a joint program of three annual lecture series offered at Baldwin-Wallace.

President, Fred DeRocheer, met with the B-W Student Council President, John Kropf, and work out such a program. Apparently the B-W president, Domenico Datore (C-M) has already begun joint Alumni plans.

Dean Harris then clarified the matter of the Student Alumni Library-Student Bar Association Card, "in addition to its present use," he said, "this card is good for admission at student rates, to any event, academic, cultural, or athletic, which any other student of B-W may now attend." It was suggested that our student body show a special interest and attention to the excellent annual lecture series offered at Baldwin-Wallace.

When finally asked whether B-W intends to add a medical school and eventually achieve a university status, the Dean simply laughed, "we rather have the good reputation of having a hospital." He added, "nothing would be done in the future to retard the growth of the schools since it is the aim of this union to maintain and develop the academic excellence that we have already established.

"Yet he remarked that such Universities as Northwestern and New York University maintain the status by pursuing the same course that we do."

The Dean closed with a statement that epitomizes our union perfectly: "Our contribution is to the total world of man."
