Law Wives Extend Invitation

To begin the new school year, the Cleveland Marshall Law Wives elected the following girls to office for the 65-66 term. Catherine Avery, president; Marilyn O’Meara, first vice-president; Joy Ann More, second vice-president; Joanne Hurley, Recording Secretary; Nancy Kless, Corresponding Secretary; Marle Siddall, Treasurer.

Many of the Cleveland Wives have been active in previous years. This past experience will be of great help; the amount of work for the club has progressively increased. The Law Wives will be busier and busier each year since its beginning the club has successively grown in size and prestige. It is the hope of the Law Wives that this year will be even more successful.

The first event for the 65-66 year will be an Open House held at the school October 2, between 7:00 and 10:00 p.m. All the husbands and wives are earnestly invited to attend this event, for here will be an excellent opportunity for the wives to become acquainted with each other and also to become more fully aware of the Law Wives, its purpose and goals, and the means by which these goals will be reached. Co-chairmen of the Open House are Carol Thim (22-3734) and Kathy McGill (6-2116).

The first regular club meeting will be held on Thursday, October 21, at the Law School. A cordial invitation is extended by the Membership Committee to all Law Wives, but in particular to the wives of the first year students to attend this meeting. For further information, you may call the West-side chairman, Marge Suggs (842-0686) or East-side chairman, Annette Zaffiro (261-0791).

Peace Corps Lawyers Returning: ABA to Help Relocate Veterans

The American Bar Association is drawing plans to help in the re-location of young lawyer veterans of the Peace Corps. Some 50 of the lawyers began returning to the United States this month. Most have served in newly developing countries of Africa for the past two years.

How to Help. Law firms, corporations and other organizations interested in helping a Peace Corps veteran may obtain a roster of applicants by writing to the American Bar Association's Lawyer Replacement Information Service, 1155 E. 99th Street, Chicago, Illinois 60659.

The roster, expected to be available on September 1, will list the names and qualifications of each veteran, and interviews may be arranged in direct contact with the applicants.

ABA Support. The ABA, under a resolution approved by the House of Delegates, in February, 1965, gave its full support to the lawyer Peace Corps program and assisted in the recruiting drive for lawyer volunteers.

DTP Plans Active Year for Members

The officers and brothers of Delta Theta Phi, Ramadan Senate, welcome back students returning from vacation.

Since our last column appeared we have had a graduation, an initiation, and a National Convention. Very shortly plans will be announced for a “Back to School” party for the active members and their families.

On June 11, the members of Ramadan Senate held a party at the Miklau’s Room of the Cleveland Sherron Hotel for 25 graduating seniors and their guests. Professor Jack Smith was on hand to be sure they would join the Alumni Senate and remain active in the fraternity.

The following day, June 12, saw 15 new initiates at the Alpha Pi chapter in Cleveland. The initiation banquet was held in Cleveland, Ohio, at the Cleveland Athletic Club.

From August 29 through September 1, the Delta Theta Phi National Convention was held at the Fontainebleau in New Orleans. Representing Ramadan Senate was Tribble Bill Richard (III).

The school year promises to be an active one. Activities will include the “Back to the Old Grand” beach party some Saturday in September; “Welcome Back” in February; rush parties with notable sponsors annexed, and monthly business meetings.

All members and prospective members should watch the bulletin boards for times and dates of coming events.

New Payment Made

The 1965-66 school year, which brings the new trimester system to Cleveland-Marshall, will also introduce a new tuition payment plan designed to expedite and better control the handling of tuition payments.

Tuition for each session has been divided into installments varying in amount with the number of hours enrolled in. Included in the first payment will be any fees due for the year. There will be a total of five of these installments due on September 7, November 11, January 3, March 7, and May 2.

The administration has also provided a penalty system for late payments ranging from a two dollar penalty to the barring from all classes and exams of any student more than four weeks late in making any installment payment.

Late News Flash

Elmer A. Gielisda (CSH), former Asst. U. S. Attorney and member of the original public defender staff, has been made head of the Public Defender’s Office by the Legal Aid Society.

William B. Saxbe will begin at about 8:30 in the evening. The topic of the lecture is yet to be announced.

Mr. Saxbe was Ohio Attorney General in the years 1957-58, and was returned to the office in 1963. His record includes eight years as a member of the Ohio House of Representatives, during which time he was Majority Leader of the House (1951-1952) and Speaker of the House (1953-1954).

The administration of Cleveland-Marshall Law School of Baldwin-Wallace has announced that this year’s first year class will be the largest in the school’s history. To meet this increase in enrollment and the problems it has brought with it, a number of changes and improvements will greet the students as the 1965-66 school year gets underway.

The Cleveland-Marshall Law School again welcomes its students, and in particular those who are with us for the first time at the beginning of this, its 68th year. Many changes have occurred over the years and academically the school has arrived at that point of recognition where it is now a school accredited not only by its peers, but also by the American Bar Association.

In spite of these changes, however, the fundamental principle that was there at its inception, still continues, namely, that the school exists in order to serve those to whom by reason of home and work pressures are precluded from devoting all of the time to their study of law. This does not mean that we offer anything less in content. The course of study that you will complete here comprehends that which you would ultimately take in any good school. How well you succeed will depend in large measure on you. And if you have the inclination and can afford the time, as many of your colleagues do, you may find an outlet in writing for the Gavel, the school newspaper; and the Law Review, an extremely excellent contribution to legal literature recognized both nationally and inter-nationally.

You may also wish to participate in student activities as an elected representative to the Student Congress, or in your later years here participate in Moot Court.

You will find our faculty here friendly and helpful. Make a point of visiting with your particular professors or the dean for advice as you go along. I will wait until you are called in, if perchance such is to be case.

Returning students will find additional physical improvements to the end that our activities may be better housed and that there may be a facility hitherto unavailable for student activity.

I wish there were some magic formula that I could suggest to you that would make your study of law a simple thing to do. Unfortunately, nobody could give you such a formula. You must go back to that individual student around whom a whole class is formed up, to be active in your own studies. This must be read as a statement of principle. Like the Rhyme of The Ancient Mariner,"

Yes, I am a house and do not deserve entry into the noble profession of the law. People simply are not built that way, except in rare and extraordinary cases.

Well another September has rolled around, and with it, another school year. I would like to take this occasion to extend a warm welcome to the class of ’69 and wish you luck in your new endeavor. There will be trials and tribulations but by the time you are entering your last year, I am sure you will feel rewarded for the effort you have expended.

American law, lawyers, and law schooling are technically the most advanced in the world today. At the Joint Meeting of the American Bar Association and the Section of Legal Education and Admissions to the Bar at the American Bar Association Annual Meeting in Miami Beach a few weeks ago.

The great problems today, the delegates went on to state, is that of character fitness. Horrible experiences that must be faced of Law students with criminal records, others who are recurrent; delinquency, contagious diseases, damages, others who cheat in academic work; lawyers who are guilty of confusing or withholding clients’ funds, or filing claims; and et cetera, ad nauseam.

As a begin new year of law school work, we all would do well to take a long, hard look at ourselves. It is very human and universal to have faults, failings, weaknesses or character defects. But the legal profession cannot, and must not, condone such weaknesses. It is justly in its members, duly admitted or apprentice alike.

It is too much to expect a man to say "Yes, I am a house and do not deserve entry into the noble profession of the law." People simply are not built that way, except in rare and extraordinary cases.

Sweeney to Run

Michael A. Sweeney (C.M.L.S. ’61) has announced his candidacy for the Democratic nomination to the Cleveland-Marshall County Bar Association.” The “Lame Duck” Session of the 68th Ohio House of Representatives, where he has been the prime mover on much legislation beneficial to Cuyahoga County. He has sponsored and helped pass several bills which are now law. The practice of law, increased the number of judges and raised judges’ and bailiff’s salaries.

Gray Impressed

By ALSA Men

Recently, Robert Gray, Council Press, had the privilege of attending the annual meeting of the American Bar Association at Miami Beach, Florida. The meeting was divided in three basic parts: the joint meetings of the House of Delegates, and Student Bar Administration Conferences. These sessions were quite interesting and were centered around the basic theme “Education in the Practice of Law.” Many speakers, both by experts in their various fields who were impressed in both their speeches and their field and their style of delivery.

The House of Delegates is the legislative branch of ALSA. Each student who has attended a convention is entitled to vote in both the election of national officers and in the discussion of resolutions. Elected to the office of president was Richard T. Schieler of University of Florida. HisDick is a person of outstanding ability and was backed strongly by the sixth circuit of the United States. He is an outstanding speaker of both the University of Cincinnati and Cleveland-Marshall are members.

Among the resolutions considered and passed was one which put an end to the practice of law without regard to race, creed, color or national origin. Also as a result of this resolution, a special committee will be appointed to re-examine ALSA’s methods of selecting student bar constitutions for any of the various commissions. I would suggest you contact the appropriate chairman or your own class representative or我自己.

The above is a summary of most of the present projects of your Student Bar Administration. I invite you all to attend the Student Bar Administration Conferences, the presentations and the discussion. Notice of meetings will be posted on the various bulletin boards. The format of the conference is that of a question and answer session. If you have a question or suggestion for any of the various commissions, I would suggest you contact the appropriate chairman or your own class representative.

Keynotes for a New Year

By Howard L. Oleck, Associate Dean

American law, lawyers, and law schooling are technically the most advanced in the world today. At the Joint Meeting of the American Bar Association and the Section of Legal Education and Admissions to the Bar at the American Bar Association Annual Meeting in Miami Beach a few weeks ago.

The great problems today, the delegates went on to state, is that of character fitness. Horrible experiences that must be faced of Law students with criminal records, others who are recurrent; delinquency, contagious diseases, damages, others who cheat in academic work; lawyers who are guilty of confusing or withholding clients’ funds, or filing claims; and et cetera, ad nauseam.

As a begin new year of law school work, we all would do well to take a long, hard look at ourselves. It is very human and universal to have faults, failings, weaknesses or character defects. But the legal profession cannot, and must not, condone such weaknesses. It is justly in its members, duly admitted or apprentice alike.

It is too much to expect a man to say "Yes, I am a house and do not deserve entry into the noble profession of the law." People simply are not built that way, except in rare and extraordinary cases.

We gratefully acknowledge the help of the Student Council and administration, without whose support this publication would not be possible.
Two Cleveland-area Congressmen, both alumni of Cleveland-Marshall Law School, joined recently in a bipartisan effort to complete the law school's recent acquisition of the bound volumes of the Congressional Record.

The law school acquired the bound volumes of the Congressional Record up to the year 1940 as the result of efforts of the Library, Prof. Rudolph H. Heiman, librarian, and Dr. Wilson G. Stapleton, recognizing that the collection was not complete, wrote to Congressmen William E. Minshall (SR) and Robert E. Sweeney ('51), appealing, he said, “to both sides of the House,” asking them to supplement the collection and put our Law Library on the permanent mailing list, in order to keep the collection current.

Said Dean Stapleton, “They responded favorably, and we now have a valuable addition to our library which will provide a basis of research in the areas of current legislation and in problems of constitutional law.”

Added the Dean, “This is a set which we might not have been able to absorb within our budgetary requirements, but it is a research tool without which no library can be complete.”

What's Happening

Northwestern University's School of Law has announced the appointment of William A. Nye ('59), a former legal counsel for the University of Chicago, to the rank of professor of law. Dr. Nye, a Chicago native, will join the law school's faculty next fall.

Moves to New Office

On School's First Floor

New quarters for the law school's Alumni Association were inaugurated on the law school's administrative offices from the second floor to the first floor, in space formerly occupied by the Daily Legal News.

In addition, Dean Wilson G. Stapleton announced the assignment of Mrs. William R. McEwan as the executive assistant to the Alumni Secretary, Peter B. Roper. Mrs. McEwan, who has been on the school's staff for more than two years, comes to the Alumni Association with extensive experience in management of similar organizations.

The Alumni Association's new office will face Ontario Street, and will facilitate the providing of additional services to members of the Association, said Mrs. McEwan.

Our own Willi McEwan, who so competently handled the Alumni Association's files and correspondence is equally competent at the Hammond Organ, kindly provided by Halle's for our Open House, Halle's even provided the organ for one month in the home of one of the winners of the huge drawing, conducted by the Open House's official host, Leo Rossman.
First Floor Opened . . . Offices Moved

Dean Stapleton tests new intercom system connecting the first three floors. The system will save "thousands" of steps he estimates.

Workmen begin to construct new Moot Court Room on first floor. This room was left for last to facilitate completion of the rest of the first floor.

Assoc. Dean Oleck and Dean Stapleton in the Dean's new office admire check for $250 won by June graduate Martin A. Leviton from ASCAP in the Nathan A. Burkan Contest. Mr. Leviton wrote a first prize paper on Patent Renewal Rights.

Office staff gets settled in their new quarters.

Professor Sheard and Mrs. McEwan inspect new conference room which will be available to Alumni and students.

Mrs. Hots helps first year students through the pile of paper work.
