Students Cop Over $20000 in Awards Annual Christmas Party Awards, Pie, and Floor Cut Planned for Law Wives At C-M Student Bar Dance

The November meeting of the Law Wives was held at school with an excellent attendance. So far this year, nearly twice the number of wives have participated in the meetings as ever before. With continued growing support, the Club will without doubt enjoy its most successful year. Since the initial meeting over six years ago, the club has steadily increased in membership by adhering to one very important ideal which is also the major goal of the Law Wives. That goal is an active participation by all the students wives in a manner which will give support and encouragement to their husbands during their four years at Cleveland Marshall. At this time, as a direct result of the most active and un-failing support by the wives, C M has the only Law Wives Club which offers a scholarship to a deserving married student. This is an achievement of which the girls can rightfully be proud.

Wills Discussed

At the November meeting, Mr. Ellis V. Rippner spoke to the group about the importance of having a will. Many thanks to Mr. Rippner for his very entertaining yet informative lecture; the wives always enjoy having him as their guest.

Sunday evening, November 21, was the annual Law Wives theatre party at the Cleveland Playhouse. There were over two hundred members and friends in attendance. This was a big success! Kitty Avery, Joy Moore and Ruth Ann Bennet wish to thank the faculty, members, friends and students who gave this event such wonderful support.

As previously mentioned, the profits from the theatre party contributed toward the Law Wives scholarship fund. A net profit of over $150.00 has been realized from this single event. Many thanks again for the tremendous turn out.

To Hold Xmas Party

On Sunday afternoon, Dec. 19, the Club will have its annual Christmas party for the wives and their children. Last year was the first time that the kiddies were also invited. There were over seventy little ones plus their mom's and what fun they all had! The program this year will include Santa Claus, a puppet show, gifts and favors for all the children. The Chairmen will contact the members regarding time, gifts, etc. at a later date. So remember Dec. 19 as one of the important days before Christmas.

Any one wishing to attend the Law Wives meetings which are held on the third Thursday of each month and would need a ride may contact: Annette Zaffiro, 261-0791 Eastside or Marge Saggio, 842-0686, Westside. At the Christmas part you may pay your dues of $4.00 per year.

If you are not able to attend any of the meetings but still wish to be a member of the Club, simply send your dues to Mrs. James Siddall, 1558 East 248 Street, Euclid, Ohio 44117. After January if you are not a paid member you will not receive post cards about meetings or any phone calls concerning future activities. So please, everyone pay their dues and be a real law wife.

The Cleveland Marshall Student Bar Awards Dance, held recently in the main auditorium of the school, turned out to be a full night of awards, dances and other related activity. The 180 Cleveland Marshall Students, faculty, alumnae, and friends, with wives in attendance, fortified themselves for the evening ahead by demolishing a buffet dinner that lived up

ALSA Committee Chairman Appointed

Seventeen students from throughout the United States have been selected to lead ALSA committee activity during 1965-66 under the general supervision of ALSA Second Vice President W. Woodrow Stewart of Tulane University School of Law.

James Bradner of Ohio State University will serve as chairman of the Association's Audio-Visual Committee which is responsible for assisting member student bar associations in planning speakers and film programs in their law schools.

Moot Court in Session

Tom Dettlebach, Carl Stern (seated.) The team of Dettlebach, Stern and Ben Barret was defeated by the University of Toledo in the first round at the regional Moot Court competition in Detroit.

Editorial Notes

This paper has watched with great interest the development of the lecture series sponsored by the student council. The committee assigned to arrange for the event has done an outstanding job. The speakers have ranged from locally prominent attorneys to the State's Attorney General, and most recently, past governor of Ohio.

Some Common Courtesy Please

When the idea was new, the attendance at the lectures was admirable. As the series progressed, the attendance declined. It did not improve at the DiSalle lecture. Here was a man that is known to all of us, in fact, to most of the country, speaking to our own students and faculty, at our school. The response was appalling, particularly in the spacious new facility.

Classes were adjourned early, not so people could go home to bed, or to watch television, or to stop at the local pub since the wife was not expecting the breadwinner home for another hour. No, classes were adjourned early so that the speaker WOULD HAVE AN AUDIENCE.

The student body was not alone remiss. The vast majority of the faculty was very conspicuous by its absence. The very same indictment applies equally to both teacher and student in this instance.

It matters not what the politics of the absentees might be. To show common courtesy to a guest, yes, an invited guest, is the only point at issue here. The host does not invite someone to his house, then depart himself at the appointed hour. Or are there new rules now governing social events, now?

Comments were made by responsible Council officers that "This is it, as far as we are concerned." They cannot be blamed for this attitude.

If this school is to remain a small-time locally reputed law school, then so be it. If, on the other hand, it intends to add luster to its reputation, then all must work to that end, starting with the faculty.

A good place to begin is by supporting the lecture series. We have the series.

Let us not lose it by a lack of enthusiasm and support.

Faculty Notes...

● Professor Schoenfeld interviewed seniors who might be interested in law school, at Miami University December 4. Professor Sheard will perform the same function at Ohio Wesleyan as will Professor Dyke at Ohio State.

● The administration announces that they are in the process of looking for new faculty members. They are contacting and interviewing prospective applicants on a nation wide basis.

● Professor Schoenfeld gave a birthday party for Professor Sheard's seven year old daughter. Comparing the party to teaching law school the professor commented that there was more house cleaning after the party.

● Most of the faculty plan to attend the Association of American Law Schools conference in Chicago over the forthcoming holidays.

● Professor Wilson is a member of two committees in the under graduate college. One committee is set up to develop Mid-Eastern Studies, and the other committee is to evaluate teaching and administrative procedures in higher learning. Professor Wilson is proud to announce he has been elected President of the Tiffany Dance Club.

● Professor Schoenfeld filed a brief as Amicus Curiae in a case heard in the Ohio Court of Appeals November 9. The main legal question involved is an interpretation of the fourth amendment of the federal constitution to ascertain whether or not a "Frisk" is a search.

A Pause

Fred Pizzedaz

for reflection

As this is being written, the writer is very tired. It seems that this period every year can be tabbed the "Valley of Fatigue." It is especially bad this year, as there have been no exams to make the blood race madly through the veins. It is hoped that we all are learning our subjects, but will we be able to do justice to three finals in eight days?

Pizzedaz

There was a dance in November, fellows. It was at the school. There was a fine buffet served. There were awards for excellence handed out to the top producers in various classes, in terms of grades. Stan Morgans took home a total of four hundred dollars as acknowledgment for outstanding effort and well earned achievements. A good time was had by all that were there. WHERE WERE YOU??

Who will the Browns face in the championship game? If it is Baltimore, who will take the local heroes and give the Colts even, based on the memory fresh in everyone's mind of the joyous event at the stadium last January? — I will.

Comments heard on the trial system of a "baby bar" given to the fourth year students have been favorable. At the least, it will give incentive to start review at an earlier date than might otherwise have been contemplated by the students.

Again this year, we packed up our trusty shotgun and headed down home for a day or two in the woods. My father walked the legs off me on the first day. We, (him standing around like Sitting Bull, me stumbling around the thickets like a beagle) flushed two hen birds, four ducks, one owl, a chicken hawk, found a dead rabbit, and finally flushed a rabbit (live) that yours truly caressed with assorted shot until dead-eye dad ended the game with one well aimed round. My penalty for failing was to prepare the bunny for the pot. But 'wha'hoppen' to all the pretty birdies? We did not even see one in two days.

This being the last issue until 1966, happy holidays to all of you. May the new year bring to you all that you missed this past year.

Judge Merrick and Dean Stapleton discuss use of Cleveland-Marshall's new moot court room by the Probate Court for actual sessions. This idea was recently put into practice. The room is available for any court or board hearings.

Alumni Fund Drive: Phase Two

Oleck Authors Book On Non-Profit Corps.

The nation's top authority on non-profit organizations, Howard L. Oleck, Associate Dean of Cleveland-Marshall Law School, has authored a new book on practice and procedure for such organizations, titled Non-Profit Corporations, Organizations, and Associations (2d edition) just published by Prentice-Hall Company.

The book, the only one on the subject, shows, step by step, how to start and operate a non-profit organization, including a club, library, credit union, fraternal order, foundation, chamber of commerce, "improve-your-city" committee, and many others. It outlines the procedure for obtaining necessary licenses and authorizations. It discusses federal tax problems, covers property transfers, payments to officers, legal rights

Placement News

Social Security's Bureau of Hearings and Appeals has vacancies for Analysts, starting at GS-7 and progressing to GS-12 ($10,619) as competency is demonstrated. Contact Edw. D. Collieran, Rm. L-1, 801-19th St., NW, Washington, D.C. 20203.

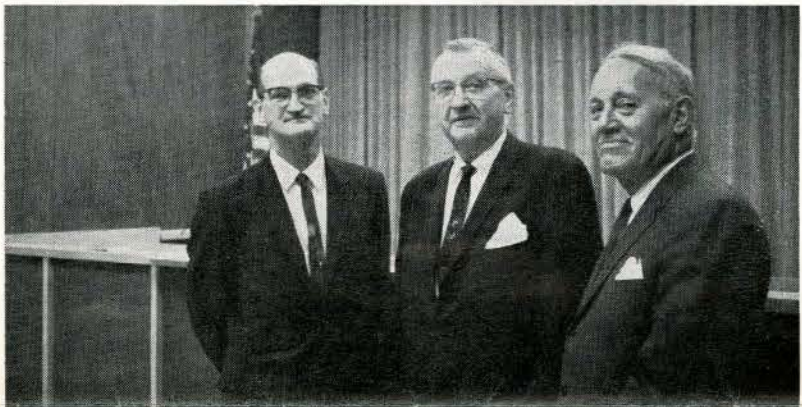

The Canton (O.) Chamber of Commerce is conducting "Operation Native Son," a plan for helping Canton area graduates to get jobs with companies in their home town. Contact law school Placement Office if interested.

The Citizens Bank & Trust Company of Wadsworth (O.) is looking for an attorney to establish and operate its Trust Department.

Attention Law Firms: C-M has a number of students who would like to be law clerks on a full time basis. If you have an opening, please contact the Placement Office, 781-6612.

Shown above are the Trustees of the C-M Alumni Association, meeting in the law school's new conference room, part of the school's first floor remodeling being sponsored in part by the Alumni Association. The handsome conference table and chairs were contributed as part of the Alumni fund drive by the Shaker Savings & Loan Association through the effort of Dean Wilson G. Stapleton.

Second-Year Campaign Adds Memorial Gifts

The second phase of a four-year campaign to pay for the first-floor remodeling improvements at the Cleveland-Marshall Law School was kicked off last week with the mailing of a descriptive leaflet and pledge card to all alumni.

The leaflet shows the various improvements made recently at the school, in great measure as the result of the commitment of the C-M Alumni Association. The leaflet has also been mailed to all practicing attorneys in the Cleveland area to acquaint the profession with recent developments here.

Again, the goal of the Alumni Association's fund-raising campaign is $20,000, which is the figure that was met last year with the help of existing funds from Alumni dues.

This year, it is the hope that the money can be raised without assistance from other Alumni Association funds. While the fund drive last year was strictly a mail campaign — and a very successful one according to veteran observers — this year's campaign will involve the use of building canvass committees, by which all alumni with offices in a given building will be contacted by a committee of fellow-alumni from that same building.

In addition, donors of substantial contributions, including those from last year, will have their gifts memorialized with a plaque in honor of a person of the donor's choosing, as a parent, other relative, associate, or friend.

A third element of this year's campaign will include approaching corporations and foundations, now that the Association has one year's experience behind it, and can show to such organizations the percentage of alumni contributing to their law school.

Sometime in January, the Trustees of the Alumni Association will announce the name of fund drive chairman for the coming year, and it is expected that he will be an alumnus whose background and experience will help the Association in its bid for assistance from industry and the various foundations.

Brown, Gray Earn Alumni Awards

The C-M Alumni Association scholarship awards, amounting to $300 each year, were awarded to two top students at a recent Buffet Dinner and Dance sponsored by the law school's Student Congress in the school's new auditorium facilities.

Robert L. Gray, fourth year student, and the Student Congress president, won the C-M Alumni Scholarship award of $150, for scoring the highest grade average at the end of the third year of studies.

The other Alumni award of $150 went to Ronald B. Brown for scoring the highest average at the end of his first year of studies.

Gray also won the Lawyer's Title Insurance Corp. Award for the highest average in the courses of Trusts, Wills and Real Property, while Brown won an award from the Ohio State Bar Association for the highest record after the first one-third of the semester hours required for the graduation.

Alumni Association Again Tops 1,000 Members

For the second year in a row, the C-M Alumni Association membership list shows more than 1000 members. Mrs. Wilhelmina McEwan, Assistant Alumni Secretary reports 1030 members already signed up, with another half year to go. Last year the Alumni Association netted 1050 members for the entire year, showing that we are well ahead of last year's record for a comparable period. Congratulations to all of us!

and duties of directors, officers, agents and members, and offers a host of other guides. There are sample by-laws, certificates, notices, and other forms for almost every type of non-profit organization.

The 23rd book by Dean Oleck, this text is virtually a complete library in one volume, and is the "bible" on organizing and operating non-profit organizations.

Among his prior works are books on corporations (including a six-volume set for lawyers), negligence, pleading, damages, and debtor-creditor law as well as books on war. He is an active member of the New York, Ohio, and Federal bars, in addition to the Cleveland Bar Association. He was the Consultant to the Congressional Study of Foundations during 1961 and 1962, better known as the Patman Committee. He is the former President of the League of Ohio Law Schools, and is listed in Who's Who in America.

Ohio Unique in Prosecution Of Criminals: Saxbe Says

The Honorable William B. Saxbe, Ohio's Attorney General addressed Cleveland Marshall students, alumni and faculty on October 22nd. Primarily, he dealt with criminal law and expressed regret that more attorneys do not work in the field. Perhaps some of the idealism of earlier days has gone from the practice of law, he indicated.

Mr. Saxbe stated that Ohio is unique in its prosecution of criminals as there are no criminal courts higher than at the county level (Court of Common Pleas). Therefore, state law enforcement is difficult. A recent development, however, has improved the situation slightly for the State. Now a prisoner must begin a habeas corpus action in the court where he was originally convicted.

Commenting on the current criticism of U.S. Supreme Court decisions, Mr. Saxbe stated that this is the price we must pay to protect the Bill of Rights in our Federal Constitution. He added that our Constitution insures the dignity of the individual even though certain decisions appear to favor the "criminal."

In Mr. Saxbe's opinion, the plan for reapportionment submitted to the Federal Court is a fair one. It is based on guidelines from the court decision and is not a product of gerrymandering. He expressed doubt that the legislators themselves would have ever reached an equitable conclusion because of the reduction in the number of legislators required. Perhaps Ohio will lead the nation with a method of compliance under Supreme Court directions, he added.
