THE CLEVELAND LAW SCHOOL.

General Statement.

A generation ago the average lawyer obtained his legal education in an office, receiving such instruction as he could from the practicing lawyer in return for clerical or other services. Only the few were able or in fact did have the advantage of law school training.

Nine out of ten were office bred. Many great lawyers were the product of the prevalent system, and the old-fashioned leisurely lawyer had plenty of time thus to act as an instructor.

The Cleveland Law School was started, over a score of years ago, as a night school, not as a competitor to the day school, but as a means of assistance to the students of the offices whose nominal preceptors in the rapidly increasing strenuous life of the professor, were more and more neglecting them.

It has never been the purpose of the school to advise prospective lawyers to take up the study of law as a side issue, where there is opportunity to pursue it otherwise.

We, therefore, appeal to but three classes of men and women.

First, to those who are studying law in an office under the old plan and desire instruction and assistance beyond that obtainable from the nominal preceptor, who may lack the time, the inclination or even the ability to be of much assistance.

Second, to those who, while not desiring to enter the practice, desire a fair and useful knowledge of legal principles as an aid to commercial life. And,

Third, to the youth of extreme energy, perseverance and industry who must devote his days to labor in some other line, but who is willing to sacrifice his pleasure and devote practically all his leisure time in mastering the knowledge necessary to proficiency in the practice of law.

In the years that the Cleveland Law School has operated we have attracted and graduated many of each of these classes. We are proud of our graduates.

Many of them have not taken up the profession of law, but are leaders in other walks of life.

Many of them have chosen the profession and have almost invariably been successful. You will find them on the bench and leaders of the bar.

Advantages.

The Cleveland Law School is located in the heart of the city, mid-way between the Federal Court House and the new County Court, and easily accessible by street car from any portion of Cuyahoga or adjoining counties. Our faculty is composed of men all of whom are experienced lawyers, who have been for years active at the trial table or on the bench.

The lectures are given by men peculiarly fitted for these several branches, and the lessons assigned are such that the ambitious student can spend upon them all the time at his disposal.

We do not profess to make lawyers, but only assist young men and women to make lawyers out of themselves.

GENERAL INFORMATION.

Admission to the Bar in Ohio.

Under the statutes of the State of Ohio the requirements for admission to the Bar are as follows:

General Code, Sec. 1701: "No person shall be admitted to an examination unless he is twenty-one years of age, has resided in the state for the year next preceding, and is a citizen of the United States or has declared his intention of becoming a citizen thereof, nor until he has produced from an attorney at law a certificate that the applicant is of good moral character, that he believes him to have sufficient legal knowledge and ability to discharge the duties of attorney and counselor at law, and that he has regularly and attentively studied law during the period of three years previous to such application, either under the tuition of a practicing attorney or in regular attendance at a law school, or for a part of such period under such tuition and for the rest of it in attendance at school."

Rule XIV—Sec. 4: "No one shall be admitted to the examination whose educational attainments are not clearly shown to be equal to those indicated by the four-year course of study in a public high school of this state of the first grade. Evidence of such attainments is to be furnished by the applicant with his application for admission to the law examination."

The course of instruction provided for the first three years is sufficiently broad and thorough to qualify those who have industriously pursued it, for admission to the Bar.

Admission to the School.

The requirements for graduation from the Law School are the same as those prescribed by the state statutes for admission to the bar, already quoted.

The candidate for admission for a degree must be at least eighteen years of age.

A graduate of a college, university, normal or technical school may be admitted without examination upon the presentation of his diploma.

The graduate of a high school or academy maintaining a four year course of study of satisfactory grade may be admitted without examination upon the presentation of a satisfactory certificate from the proper school authority.

A candidate who has pursued a course of study equivalent to the four-year high school course may be admitted without examination upon the certificate of an authorized public officer, or of a proper officer of an institution of advanced learning.

(Blanks for this purpose are furnished by the officer.)

All other applicants for admission must pass a satisfactory examination upon the subjects required for entrance to the College of Liberal Arts of Baldwin-Wallace College, or must have completed the course of study offered in the Cleveland Preparatory School which is operated in conjunction with the Law School.

A student may enter the Law School without credits for a full high school course or its equivalent, but he should not be deficient more than fifty per cent. of such high school course or its equivalent.

For more detailed information concerning the Preparatory School Course communicate with Mr. D. H. Hopkins, 944 Engineers' Building, Telephone Main 4543.

Persons otherwise qualified who present credits from reputable law schools having requirements similar to those of this Law School will be admitted to the advanced standing to which such credits may entitle them, provided such credits do not cover a period of study exceeding two years. Admission to the Bar of Ohio, requires one year's study in the State of Ohio, and graduation from The Cleveland Law School requires one year's study in the classes of The Cleveland Law School. Credit will not be given for legal study pursued under the direction of a correspondence school.

Special Students.

Persons, not candidates for a degree, may pursue one or more courses as special students, provided they are qualified to take such courses to advantage. They will receive a certificate for all work done and may enter at any time as candidates for a degree, provided they were substantially qualified under the above requirements for admission as regular students at the time of first entering the school. They may also take the regular three year course, thus qualifying them for the Bar examination, though no degree be awarded.

Matriculation.

Students are urged to enter at the beginning of the year. The disadvantages of late registration are embarrassing, especially to students who intend to practice law in Ohio.

The first semester begins September 14th, 1921. The office, which is located in the Engineers' Building, is open for registration six weeks in advance.

Hours for Lectures.

The lectures are given every Monday, Wednesday and Friday, in the late afternoon and evening. The student may select the session that will best suit his convenience. The evening and afternoon courses are the same.

Lecture Hours.

Afternoon Sessions ..... 5 to 7 P. M.

Evening Sessions ..... 7 to 9 P. M.

This arrangement enables the school to profit by the services of lecturers engaged in practice or in public service, while it gives to students the entire day for study, visiting the libraries, or attending the sessions of the Courts.

The course covers a period of four years, the last of which is a post-graduate course and designed especially for those who desire assistance of a more practical character than can usually be offered by a law school.

At the end of the third year students are entitled to a certificate admitting them to the state bar examination, and the course of study for the three years is such that the diligent student of proper preliminary education ought to have no great difficulty in being admitted to the bar.

Baldwin-Wallace College therefore confers the degree of LL. B. upon those qualified students who have completed the first three years' work.

Attendance.

Students are required to be regular in their attendance at the lectures. Irregular attendance results not only in a loss of interest in the study of the law, but in a lowered standard of scholarship. If, therefore, in the judgment of the Faculty, a student, because of his irregular attendance, is not maintaining the required standing, his registration and enrollment in the class will be cancelled. A certificate of regular attendance will be refused unless the requirements of the school are fully met. The student who is present at ninety per cent or more of the lectures throughout the scholastic year will be deemed regular in his attendance.

Examinations.

Class examinations are held at the close of each subject. These examinations are intended to test the thoroughness of the student's work.

An average of 75 per cent. must be attained in each subject to entitle a student to a certificate of attendance.

No special examinations are granted, save in cases of sickness on the day of examination, or for other imperative cause approved by the Dean of the School. In no case will such examination be granted unless prompt application be made therefor.

Method of Instruction.

The case system of teaching law seems best adapted to the needs of the law school whose students in the main have no occupation other than that of students.

A large majority of our students on the other hand are employed during the day in other lines of industry, and therefore our instructors follow the text-book system, combining with it lectures, and citing cases to be read by those who desire a degree.

The system in vogue is that known as the "Dwight Method" and it consists of lessons from a text-book assigned in advance, recitation from the students, and explanations from the instructor.

Courses of Instruction.

The courses of instruction offered are carefully graded between the four years. A regular student may take any course offered in the year to which he belongs, or any course not already taken in the preceding year; but he may not take, without special permission, a course assigned to a succeeding year.
