For President --

I believe any candidate for SBA president should meet certain standards. They are:

1. Be able to speak to all groups of individuals in the school and to effectively communicate ideas to them.
2. Be able to plan and organize effectively so as to accomplish all of the major projects of the student body and the minor every day details of the office.
3. The SBA president must also have a great amount of free time available to satisfactorily fulfill the duties of the office.

I believe that I meet these standards and I would appreciate any support and votes which I receive.

Gary Gilmartin

For Vice President --

I make no empty promises. The only promise I make is to devote 100% effort to promote the interests of the student body.

David Layva

The office of president requires an individual prepared to work for the student body and school as an initiator, director, and representative. I will encourage further liaisons between the law school and community and believe active participation in legal functions on the national scene benefits not only the direct participants, but enhances the image of our school nationally. Through any participation as a Senator in the Student Bar Association during the past year, I have broadened my knowledge of student government. I would be honored for your support in this election.

Carey N. Gordon

For Vice President --

I make no empty promises. The only promise I make is to devote 100% effort to promote the interests of the student body.

Phyllis A. Sigal

Qualifications:

1. SBA Senator
2. Co-chairman SBA "Happy Hours"
3. Interested in substantial student representation

For Secretary --

Being secretary of the SBA will entail both enthusiasm and hard work. I feel that I can supply both - plus a dash of originality.

Helene J. Swisher

For Treasurer --

Why I espouse, propose, and decree to be the most viable, amenable, and legal mandated, man of fate candidate indeed foreseeably to be the newly selected, dissected and hopefully elected man of all means for the newly created SBA post for abandoned academica still searching for man's best friend - dog catcher. Yes, I am the right man for the job. Let us consider the advantages and disadvantages of dog catching.

Sincerely,

William Huntington

For Dog Catcher

Miscellaneous

We apologize to the members of the slate platform for editing parts of their platform. It was unavoidable in light of the insufficient notice given us by the present SBA officers. It seems that more candidates could have shown an interest if they would have known about the election a little more in advance.

Thanx to Ilene for some great last-minute help.

This edition was made possible through the collective efforts of Arnie, Joe, John, Ilene and John.

SLATE ---

This year, the S.B.A. spent most of its time deciding whether support should be given to every emerging "cause" outside the law school. Very little productive effort took shape in the form of any amount of student interest being reflected in the administration policies of the law school.

If the S.B.A. is going to accomplish the job it was set up to do, it needs strong leadership from a cohesive executive committee. We seek consideration as the S.B.A. executive committee for next year, as we believe the S.B.A. should and can be an effective student administrative voice.

Next year, apathetic senators have to be removed from the S.B.A. by an automatic absentee forfeiture rule to insure a more fully represented student body. We favor the implementation of the rule to prevent senators from holding onto their positions after they have more than four absences from S.B.A. meetings. A senator who forfeits his/her position would be replaced by a representative of his/her class to be approved by a simple S.B.A. majority.

Also, bickering over political philosophies has to be eliminated from S.B.A. meetings. The student body, when it elects S.B.A. senators, gives them a mandate to protect students interests from over-reaching school administration policies; this does not give senators a right to pass off their own political views as representative of the student body during S.B.A. meetings. To prevent the latter, we favor the appointment of a parliamentary by the S.B.A. executive committee to rule out of order and dismiss all extraneous political discussions, as well as provide for orderly meetings on matters of student interest.

Further, we favor the S.B.A. legislating effectively on the following points of student interest to have them incorporated within the administrative policies of the school:

1) Preserve the grading guidelines. The grading guidelines effectively equalize the grading techniques among professors and for reasons too plain to be restated, these guidelines should be maintained.

2) Re-schedule evening classes. Six hour courses should be divided into 4 and 2 hour segments instead of the present 3 hour segments so evening students can arrange to take 10 credit hours a quarter, while only attending class 3 nights a week to enable them to spend more evenings at home with their families.

3) Establish a C.S.U. check cashing service. A check cashing service proposal has been presented to us by the Dean of Student Affairs for her support.

4) Implement the C.S.U. J.D.-M.B.A. program. A proposal to begin a combined J.D. and M.B.A. program at C.S.U. is being chocked to death by university red tape. The S.B.A. could help this proposal along as it would enable students who are interested in obtaining an M.B.A. to finish the program only one quarter after normal graduation from law school.

5) Re-organize the S.B.A. speakers program. The C.S.U. auditorium as opposed to the student lounge should be reserved for S.B.A. speakers so all law students interested in attending will be able to do so. Also 1/3 of all S.B.A. speakers should be scheduled in the evening for the convenience of evening students who may have 1/3 of the speakers program but have not even had one speaker scheduled in the evening this past year.

6) Re-organize the class registration system. One obvious inequity that exists now is that students who are on scholarship have to wait until after the processing of their scholarship monies before their class preference will be processed. This often results in scholarship students who registered early being closed out of the classes or professors they originally selected.

7) Implement the selection of a new law school diploma. The dimensions of the present diploma are 3 1/2" by 11". We favor the selection of a diploma 12" by 18" that is compatible to frame and display in a law office and also sufficiently represents the hours of effort put forth to receive it.

The above proposals are just some of our ideas to more effectively have student interests voiced and implemented in the administration policies of the school. From these proposals, you should be able to determine the direction and scope of our leadership and whether or not you can support this leadership. If you find you can, please cast your vote for us as a whole, so we can provide the S.B.A. with an executive committee that is determined to lead.
