I. INTRODUCTION

June 1991 marked the tenth anniversary of the "discovery" of the AIDS disease. It seemed a propitious time to contemplate the problems faced by individuals who have the disease and by those who have the HIV virus. This bibliography provides a selective listing focusing on the legal aspects of AIDS and HIV and is composed primarily of citations to periodical literature. Concentration is on "legal" periodicals but medical journals and newspaper articles should not be overlooked if the researcher would like a fuller picture.

For the most part articles over two pages in length from journals were included. Editorials and articles from national and legal newspapers generally are not included. Although some articles are listed from foreign periodicals, most of the entries focus on the United States.

Listings in one category can cover some aspects of other categories. An attempt was made to include the article in the category which best covered the subject matter of the majority of the article. An asterisk (*) indicates that the article is contained in one of the symposia or special issues listed in the "Symposia and Special Issues" section of this bibliography.

Articles from HASTINGS CENTER REPORT are not covered extensively, however this resource is invaluable in that it contains many columns, articles, and features dealing with all aspects of the disease. Comprehensive inclusion of materials contained in the MENTAL & PHYSICAL DISABILITY LAW REPORTER was not possible. The REPORTER, although sometimes precursory in its coverage, is an excellent current awareness tool. Another source not covered in this bibliography, but helpful to those researching this issue is BIOLAW, composed of a print treatise and primary documents in microfiche.

Since legal periodical literature on this subject continues to proliferate, the researcher can keep up to date by monitoring the standard periodical indexes.
