SCARED SUSAN HAYES, wearing glasses, goes to take her oath and face the grand jury yesterday. Deputy Sheriff Carl Rossbach is handing her in the door.

WAITS JURY CALL. Miss Hayes, brown-eyed "other woman" in the case, soberly came to give evidence that helped to bring down a first-degree murder charge on Dr. Sam Sheppard.

BAY POLICE CHIEF. John P. Eaton, mathematics teacher turned policeman, was called as a grand jury witness.

CORONER Samuel R. Gerber brought blood-marked pajamas and trousers, an inventory of the Sheppards' goods and photographs of the murder scene to show the grand jury.

RETURNS MURDER INDICTMENT. Bert R. Winston, grand jury foreman, hands the first-degree charge against Dr. Sheppard to Judge Arthur H. Day (seated).

WAITING AT THE JAIL DOOR for their client, en route from Bay Village, were Fred W. Garmone and William J. Corrigan (right), attorneys for Dr. Sheppard.
